AAAS Award for Science Diplomacy

The AAAS Award for Science Diplomacy, presented at the AAAS Annual Meeting, February 2015 in San Jose, CA is given to an individual or small group in the scientific and engineering or foreign affairs communities that has contributed to the role of science cooperation in building stronger links between and among societies. The award is open to all regardless of nationality or citizenship. Nominees must be living at the time of their nomination. The recipient receives US $5,000 award, a commemorative plaque, complimentary registration, and reimbursement for reasonable travel and hotel expenses.

Nominations should be typed and include the following:

Nominator’s name, address, phone number, email; nominee’s name, title, institutional affiliation, address, phone and fax numbers, and email a summary of the action(s) that form the basis for the nomination (about 250) words a longer statement, not to exceed three pages, providing additional details of the action(s) for which the candidate is nominated. Two letters of support any documentation (books, articles, or other materials) that illuminates the significance of the nominee’s achievement may also be submitted. All materials become the property of AAAS. Completed nominations should be submitted to: Awards Coordinator, AAAS Center for Science Diplomacy, American Association for the Advancement of Science, 1200 New York Ave., N.W., Washington, DC 20005, USA; http://diplomacy.aaas.org; tel: 202-326-6650; fax (202) 289-4958; email: diplomacy@aaas.org

All materials must be received by September 1.